Propose Building New Hospital

The proposal to erect new hospitals at both Didsbury and Olds was the subject of discussion at a meeting of a committee of the Didsbury and Olds hospital boards, together with the members of the municipal councils, held in Didsbury last Wednesday.

The secretaries of the hospital boards, Messrs. A. Brusso and Stan Edwards, were instructed to present the scheme to the various councils concerned for consideration at their next meeting.

The proposal is to build a community hospital at both points under a similar plan to the one adopted at Lacombe, where a new hospital had been recently erected. Under the scheme it will be necessary for the towns to float debentures to raise the necessary funds, and an agreement entered into with the municipalities of Mountain View and Westerdale whereby they will each assume one-third of the cost of the building and equipment of the hospital.

From information which had already been gathered by the committee, the cost of erecting a suitable hospital would amount to approximately $1,000 per bed.

It has long been evident that the present buildings are unsuitable for hospital purposes and that if proper facilities for hospitalization of the people of the district are to be maintained, new buildings will be necessary sooner or later.

If the scheme is to be proceeded with, however, it will necessarily have to be put to a vote of the ratepayers for their decision.

Successfully Grows Crested Wheat Grass

A. M. Robertson & Sons of Westcott were successful in growing a wonderful crop of crested wheat grass seed this year, having a yield of 400 bushels off 10 acres.

By way of an experiment in an effort to obtain suitable grass for a permanent hay crop, they seeded down 10 acres of crested wheat grass in breaking in 1936. This year, even under dry conditions, the crop appeared so good that they decided to allow it to produce seed. The crop was cut with a binder and when threshed produced 400 bushels of seed. When cleaned it is estimated that there will be about 6,000 lbs. of seed.

A sample of the seed was sent to the dominion seed branch at Calgary and it graded No. 1. The government offered to purchase the entire crop at 25c per lb. for distribution in the drier areas, but the Robertsons decided to hold the larger quantity of the crop and give local farmers a chance to obtain seed and benefit by their experiment.

Crested wheat grass has been recommended by the department of agriculture as an excellent grass for withstanding drought. Mr. Jack Robertson informed us that the hay makes excellent feed and under last year's conditions yielded from 1½ to 2 tons per acre.

Messrs. Robertson were so well satisfied with their experiment that next year they intend seeding down 60 acres on their farm at Westcott, as well as a considerable acreage on a farm at Irricana in which they are interested, to crested wheat grass. They will sow about 8 lbs. to the acre.

The Sunday School Institute under auspices of the Red Deer Presbytery held last Wednesday afternoon and evening was an unqualified success. All pastoral charges of the south half of the presbytery were represented and nearly all the Sunday Schools. The interest was well sustained in all the various topics discussed and should contribute to increased success in our Sunday School work.

The services next Sunday will be in charge of the pastor, who will continue the sermon series on "The Lord's Prayer." All friends are cordially welcome.

Free Skating Party Next Tuesday Night

Entertainment that is free to all will be given next Tuesday night, December 7th, when the 20th Century Club will sponsor free skating and a moccasin dance on the ice at the Didsbury rink, with Bannister's loud-speaker from Crossfield making all announcements and supplying the music. Children 14 years and under will be asked to stop skating at 9 p.m.

The club has provided many unique entertainments for its members, but on this night will endeavor to provide amusement for every man, woman and child in the town and district in an effort to boost and encourage clean sport and outdoor activities in the community.

Now folks, this is to be a live wire party for all, and when you get tired of skating or dancing on the ice you can step inside the rink house and partake of steaming hot coffee and tasty doughnuts served free by a group of Didsbury's young people, whose only object is to provide you with the best time of the year.

Pioneer Stock Buyer Passes Away

Moses Good, pioneer stock buyer of the Didsbury district, passed away at his home on Monday, November 29, at the age of 76 years and 11 months, after a short illness.

"Mose" as he was familiarly called, was one of the best known men in the district, having been one of the leading stock buyers here for the past 27 years. He was also well known in Calgary, being a familiar figure around the yards in Calgary during shipping days.

Born at Waterloo, Ontario, on December 25th, 1860 he was married to Melissa Bricker, at Berlin, Ont., in 1890. After residing a number of years in Michigan they came to Didsbury in 1907. For several years he was agent for the Massey Harris Co and was connected with a culvert company which was organized here.

Twenty seven years ago he entered into the stock buying business which he carried on up until the time of his death. In this business he came in touch with practically every farmer in the district and gained many friends both in town and country.

Besides his wife, he leaves to mourn one son, Mr. Lorne Good, inspector of schools at Wainwright; and one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Cruikshank of Cochrane, Alberta. Also two brothers, Ben Good and Emanuel Good of Didsbury, and three sisters: Mrs. Noah Hallman, Edmonton; Mrs. Noah Steckle, Calgary, and Mrs. Geo Bricker of Yale, Michigan.

The funeral services will be held at the M.B.C. Church, Didsbury, on Thursday at 2 p.m. and the interment at the Didsbury Cemetery.

The Big Interests

One is sometimes tempted to wonder why those so-called old fashioned virtues—thrift, hard work, prudence and integrity, are so frequently sneered at nowadays and discounted as something that is out-moded and therefore, if not actually to be abhorred, at least something to be ashamed of.

Despite the fact that history, and particularly comparatively recent history, abounds with the names of men who from little or nothing have built up great industries, have risen to wealth or power, by the application of these virtues, plus ability and foresight, it would appear as if they were to be condemned, and the capitalistic "system" which in combination with a democratic form of government gives the poor boy an opportunity to rise from the ranks ought to be relegated to the ash heap, if some proponents of upheaval are to be believed.

Without holding any particular brief for capitalism and the capitalists one cannot help but deplore a good deal of the loose talk which is indulged in, all too frequently, in which the capitalist is held up as the foe of the common man and such terms as "the big interests" and the "fifty big shots" are used to express contempt, if not hatred, for those who have got along in a competitive world by their own efforts; and in which such slogans (not borne out by statistics in the United States and Canada) "the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer," pass for currency and are accepted by some as gospel.

It would almost seem as if some of the facts are forgotten; that, for instance, without capital labor could achieve nothing of consequence; that the co-operative efforts of capital and labor have made the luxuries of yesterday the necessities of to-day and that inevitably the luxuries of to-day will become the necessities of tomorrow and that nowhere in the world have these achievements approached the zenith as they have in the countries of this continent where free rein has been given to individual effort under a democratic, capital-labor system to an extent as yet unrealized elsewhere in actual practice.

Citing a number of illustrations of men who have risen to important posts in industry J. Lambert Payne writing in the Ottawa Journal refers, among many others, to Walter P. Chrysler, whose story is an extraordinary tribute to these old fashioned virtues, and the late John R. Booth, of Ottawa, and goes on to say:

"Instead of wealth being in the hands of a predatory few, as is often alleged, its diffusion is the salient fact of our time. As a matter of totality in Canada, it is literally in the hands of millions. . . . There is not a trace of cohesion or co-operation among the capitalists (referring to allegations that the big interests combine to thwart the will of the people). Chrysler and Booth had to meet strenuous rivalry at every step in their progress; and for that reason, so patent to the judicial mind, we use a misleading word when speak of capitalism as 'a system'.

"Moreover," as Mr. Payne points out, "the execration of capitalism in certain quarters ignores the fact that it has existed since organized society began, and," he concludes, "will likely persist. Commerce is impossible without it."

And not in industry alone has capital, so far in the history of the world, been one of the two essential factors to civilized progress, but it is also an important element in agriculture. Every farmer is himself an illustration of the co-operative effect of capital and labor, for every farmer is both a capitalist and a laborer. Every man who purchases a half section of land and a line of implements and power to operate them becomes a capitalist and when, in addition to that, he hires a man to operate some of his machinery he places himself in the category of a capitalist employer of labor.

And every farmer who has employed one or more men knows that there must be co-operation and accord between himself and his hired man if both, or either, are to attain maximum results.

It has often been said that there is nothing new under the sun and that is true of efforts to decry capitalists and capitalism. The same cry has been raised during every depression which has struck industry on the North American continent as was aptly pointed out, with examples, in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

If past history is to be regarded as a guide, it is probably fairly safe to assume that with the return of prosperity, the bailing of what is regarded as "the big interests" will disappear as people become more occupied with efforts to advance their own interests, provided that while they are doing so they are not unmindful of their obligations to others.

In the agricultural west which has been so hard hit recently and in those sections which are still facing the dire results of prolonged drought, the disappearance of ire at capital may be retarded, but the time will in all probability come when the rank and file will look back in retrospect and wonder what it was all about.

London's Passenger Trains

Over 7,000 Arrive And Leave Terminals Every Day

The British Railways Press Office announces that over 7,000 passenger trains arrive and leave London's seven main line terminals every day, an average of five trains a minute. There are in Britain nearly twice as many passenger and freight trains for every mile of track as there are in France, and more than five times as many as there are in the United States.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Aide-de-Camp To Lord Tweedsmuir To Rejoin Royal Navy

Lieutenant S. G. Rivers-Smith has relinquished his post as aide-de-camp to the governor-general and left for England to rejoin the royal navy, which he left for service with Lord Tweedsmuir.

Rivers-Smith chose to leave his post at Ottawa one year before his term expired, feeling he would lose contact with developments in the navy if he remained longer.

Last summer Rivers-Smith accompanied the governor-general on the complete itinerary of his tour through the northwest and British Columbia. He was the only member of Lord Tweedsmuir's staff who covered the whole journey of more than 10,000 miles.

His successor is Lieut. R. Scott, also of the royal navy.

Novelist Has Recipes Used By Famous Italian Poisoners

There is a bank in London which has in its vaults secret recipes of all the deadly poisons known to the Borgias, the famous Italian poisoners.

They have been placed there for safety by a woman who is afraid they may get into the hands of the wrong people.

She is Miss Kitty Shannon, novelist daughter of the late Sir James Shannon, the famous R.A.

When she decided to write her sixth novel—about the Borgias—Miss Shannon went to Italy to hunt up the poisons they used for inclusion in the book.

Miss Shannon told the Daily Sketch: "I advertised in a Rome paper for somebody who knew the recipes."

"The first thing that happened was that I had a visit from police officials, but I was able to reassure them that I had no evil intentions."

"Then I had a visit from a chemist; in fact, one of his ancestors had prepared poisons for the Borgias. He gave me the recipes for ten different poisons."

"I was appalled by the simplicity of some of them. One, which I dare not reveal, is so simple that it can be prepared from boiling down three different weeds that you tread underfoot any time you go for a country walk. One drop of it will kill you in about fifteen minutes."

"And now there is a little difficulty over my book. The poison recipes were to have been included in it; but the publishers are also nervous."

"So some of the Borgia poisons will have to remain secret. They will stay at the bank until I destroy them. They are too big a responsibility."

The Word Hydro

Means Something Apart From Electric Power In Britain

In Canada, the word "Hydro" usually refers to one of the country's most vital assets, hydro-electric power. It's a different story in Britain, where the people always think of a hotel when "Hydro" is mentioned. The term is short for "Hydropathic", English and Scottish Hydros are usually temperance hotels where water cures are the thing.

Canadians learned something about them during the visit of 22 Scottish hotel-keepers and their wives. The party, organized under the joint auspices of the Scottish Travel Association and the Hotels and Restaurants' Association of Great Britain, spent a day at Ottawa, seeing the Parliament Buildings and other aspects of the capital and making a thorough inspection tour of The Chateau Laurier, where they were entertained to dinner by the Canadian National Railways hotel department.

Two Hydros were represented in the group—one at Peebles and the other at Skelmorlie. Hotel names in the list that seemed particularly romantic to Canadian ears were the Udale Arms of Machrihanish, the Duke of Gordon Hotel of Kingussie, and the Balie Nicol Jarvie of Aberfoyle. The last is named after a popular Walter Scott character, the magistrate in "Rob Roy."—C.N.R. News Bulletin.

Bar Canadian Nurses

American Officials To Take Steps To Prevent Their Entry To U.S.

James Houghteling, United States immigration commissioner, in a letter made public by the National Nurses' Association, said immediate steps would be taken to prevent the further entry of job-seeking Canadian nurses into the United States.

The association recently protested to Labor Secretary Perkins against what it called the "wholesale importation" of Canadian nurses to hospitals in New York state and elsewhere "to the detriment of qualified graduate American nurses in New York and the entire United States."

The protest was referred to Houghteling, who replied:

"I have been examining the records and am inclined to agree with you that the courtesy we have been extending to this class of Canadian visitor has been overdone. . . ."

"I am therefore issuing instructions to our officers on the Canadian border that while Canadian nurses made be admitted on visitors' permits for ordinary visits on cases which require temporary entry into the United States, visitors' permits shall no longer be issued for the purpose of enabling Canadian nurses to come into this country to take jobs here."

Statue Of Christ

Erected On Barren Rocky Eminence On Bering Sea

A life-size statue of Christ faces Russia across the Bering sea from the highest point of land on lonely Christ the King Island, erected by the island's population of 190 Roman Catholic Eskimos as a symbol of Christ's love.

Details of the statue and its dedication were revealed in New York by Miss Felicity Buranelli, niece of the late Mrs. Samuel J. Kitson, widow of the famous British sculptor. Mrs. Kitson, before she died seven months ago, completed the statue her husband started.

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, the "glacier priest", scientist and explorer is responsible for the erection of the statue on the barren rocky, eminence rising 900 feet above sea level, 85 miles from Nome.

AT 83 SHE DEFIES RHEUMATISM

After Suffering Acute Pain For Years

Rheumatism first attacked this old lady in 1931, and gradually spread from her arms to other parts of her body. Then she started to take Kruschen Salts, and now she sends the following letter in her own handwriting:

"I have suffered from rheumatism since 1931. At first, I felt acute pain in both arms. I could not sleep for pain. It grew worse, and gradually crept down to the tips of my fingers. Next it reached my knees and ankles, which made me quite helpless for a long period. A friend recommended me to take Kruschen Salts. I find they do me more good than any other medicine, liniment or ointment I ever used. This is my own writing, though I am in my 84th year."—(Mrs.) H.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by deposits of needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts stimulate your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is frequently the cause of your suffering.

Woman Worried Over Breakfast She Gave Her Husband

Stanley Ditzel, switchboard operator in the Town Hall at West Orange, New Jersey, received a call from an excited woman who asked for the Board of Health.

"The line is busy, madam," said Mr. Ditzel.

"Oh, you help me, please," she pleaded. "After my husband left for work this morning, I discovered I made a terrible mistake. I gave our dog chopped meat, which I was going to make into patties for my husband's breakfast, and gave my husband patties made of canned dog food. What shall I do?"

A dog owner himself, Mr. Ditzel assured her no harm would result. Relieved, she explained that neither her husband nor the dog seemed to be any the worse for the error, although she had been worried. She did not give her name.

Cree Indian From West Makes Trip From Winnipeg To Ottawa In A Rowboat

Eloquently shrugging his bronzed and muscular shoulders, a full-blooded Cree Indian chief and medicine man derided the Hollywood conception of his people as entirely exaggerated, and debunked the cowboy as an utterly unromantic creature who carried firearms to protect himself from coyotes and stampeding cattle.

Chief O-Ke-Mow My-E-Gun, known as Lone Wolf, stopped over in Chatham on his way home from Ottawa after a single-handed trip from Winnipeg in a 19-foot rowboat, "The Roving Jane." He rowed 1,750 miles, and the trip lasted from April 15 to October 9.

Service with the 46th South Saskatchewan Battalion as Private George Edward O'Neil cost Chief Lone Wolf many years of suffering from chronic bronchial asthma as the result of a gas attack, and he has sought to regain his health by living a strenuous explorer's life out-of-doors.

Rowing every inch of the way from Winnipeg to Ottawa, stripped to the waist, completed his cure, and Chief Lone Wolf, is again a magnificent figure of a man, despite his 57 years. Three years ago he rowed 3,500 miles on a similar trip, from Winnipeg as far as the Ottawa River, and then back by way of the French River and Georgian Bay.

His route this time, as he continued building himself a new set of lungs, was from Winnipeg along the Red River, the Lake of the Woods and the Rainy River. He entered Lake Superior, rowed thence to the north channel of Lake Huron between the Manitoulin Islands and the mainland, then along the north shore of Georgian Bay to Midland, and thence down the Trent Canal to Ottawa.

Averaging better than 10 miles a day in "The Roving Jane," Chief Lone Wolf ate, drank, slept and was merry in his faithful craft, which was in reality an old yacht hull with the engine removed. With him he had a spring bed, which he slept upon low in the boat, an ample ladder, cooking utensils, fishing tackle and personal effects.

Though most of his travelling was done in the day time, Chief Lone Wolf took advantage of moonlight nights to make up for time lost through delay caused by stormy weather. He was close to nasty weather in the northern lakes that slowed his progress, but he experienced no storms personally.

The Cree chief and medicine man is far from being a savage—he is a cultured, polished gentleman with only pity and regret for the white man's distorted picture of his people. He is the son of Chief Gray Eagle, who surrendered to General Middleton along with the famous Chief Poundmaker when Lone Wolf was five years of age. Lone Wolf was born in 1880, on the present site of Calgary.

Chief Lone Wolf's early schooling was from Donald Smith later Lord Strathcona. Lord Strathcona's second wife was a full blooded Cree Indian woman, the chief recalled.

Lone Wolf spent seven years in Bristol, Eng., three in Paris and a year in Germany, before returning to Canada to lead the explorer's life he loves and has always tried to live.

"The motion picture conception of the Canadian Indian is a complete exaggeration," Chief Lone Wolf said. "I don't see why parents—and yes, ministers of the gospel—allow children to go to see pictures showing Indians using tomahawks and scalping."

The cowboy of the past was far from a romantic figure, and his usual uniform of a pair of overalls came from lack of money for a better costume, Chief Lone Wolf said. It is true he carried guns, but only to protect himself from coyotes, wild bulls, stampeding cattle, and on rare occasions, men, the chief went on.

The Crees are thoroughly Canadian in origin, as they settled in Western Canada 1,417 years before the birth of Christ, Chief Lone Wolf explained.

"We are the true Asiatic people, I believe," he said. "We are really often mistaken for white men. There were complete blonds and red-heads among the Cree before the white men came."

The Indian is less affected by receiving treaty money than the white man is by unemployment relief, in Chief Lone Wolf's opinion.

"Some have become lazy," he admitted, "but that has been the same with the white man on relief."

Relief recipients who do not want to work meet with scant favor in Chief Lone Wolf's eyes, and he pointed out that relief expenditures must come out of the Indian's pocket too.

While some white men refuse to go off relief to work, the Indian will go out in the woods with his gun, fish nets and traps, and at least bring back wood for his women to weave into baskets, Chief Lone Wolf said.

"The man who says that the Indian is lazy because of the treaty money he receives is a prevaricator," Chief Lone Wolf asserted.

The Crees resemble the Chippewas, as far as language is concerned. Words are often similar in the two tribes, the chief said. His people rarely intermarry with other Indian tribes, though a number have done so with Scotch and French settlers, he said.

The Cree was a truly peaceful Indian. Two Cree Indian .. .

dian until the Blackfeet from the south invaded their lands and spread assassination through his people, at the time of the two buffalo runs before the last of the great herds vanished from the plains, Chief Lone Wolf said.

"I'd like to give your college students and school pupils the true story of our people," he said, with flashing eyes. "There is no truth in to-day's conception of the Indian, as 'heap bad Indian' who goes in for scalping."

He told of rebuking a mother who used him to frighten her children into good behavior by threatening to have Chief Lone Wolf scalp them, telling her that Indians will not hurt children and that the suggestion was painful to him.

"My parents never told me to fear a Chinaman," Chief Lone Wolf said, comparing Indian tolerance to that of the white man.

The First Horseless Carriage

Description Which Was Contained In Prospectus Is Interesting

Time marches on. This year marks the 40th anniversary of the forming of the first automobile company, the stockholders of which on August 1, 1897, authorized their president to "build one horseless carriage in as nearly perfect a manner as possible." This car was completed within the year and performed satisfactorily on the road. It was, however, branded as impractical by the public. This horseless carriage was described in the prospectus as follows:

Underneath the box, and in every way independent of it, is a 5-h.p. gasoline motor, which in operation makes scarcely any vibration. The vehicle is steered with the left hand. The lever at the right of the buggy, when thrown forward, throws in the back gear; when turned in the opposite direction a fourth of a turn it throws in a four-mile speed, which is used for rough roads and hill climbing. If higher speed is desired another quarter turn gives eight miles an hour, still another is 12 miles an hour, and if still greater speed is desired the speed is increased at the governor of the motor and as high as 18 miles can be obtained.

The machinery is very simple, not even a counter-shaft used in its construction; it is practically noiseless and impossible to explode, as the fuel supply is below the engine. National Revenue Review.

Viceroy Is Proper Title

Whilst it is difficult, perhaps, to see why there is any "urgent need" for a change in the title, it is certainly true that His Excellency is here as the personal representative of the King—the embodiment of the Monarchy in Canada. Though styled Governor-General, he is, nevertheless, Viceroy of Canada.

Orderly Market Control

Britain Has Been In Consultation With Dominions on Question

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons that there had been consultations between the government and the Dominions with a view to orderly control of the foodstuffs market.

The statement came as the chancellor answered a charge made by Hugh Dalton, Labor, earlier in the debate that the government turned down a trade proposal by New Zealand.

Dalton said New Zealand last spring offered to send Great Britain an unlimited quantity of dairy products, proposing to devote the British funds received from these products, after deducting shipping charges, to purchase of British manufactured goods.

The chancellor of the exchequer said the plan would be difficult to operate because it involved the earmarking of exchange.

The Dominions as a whole had an interest in these matters "and there is no statutory, quantitative regulation of principal foodstuffs from the Dominions," he said. "There have been consultations between ourselves and the Dominions with a view to orderly control of the market and for the purpose of maintaining the maximum possible supplies to the consumer, consistent with a reasonable remuneration for the producer."

Value Of Cheese

Encouraging Canadians To Consume More Of This Canadian Product

"It has always seemed remarkably strange to me that notwithstanding the fact that it is generally conceded that Canada makes the best Cheddar cheese in the world, yet Canadians eat less cheese than the people of any other country," said Hon. James G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, when speaking on behalf of National Cheese Week. The per capita consumption of cheese in Canada is only 3½ pounds compared with 9½ pounds in Great Britain, where practically all Canadian cheese that is exported finds a ready market.

"National Cheese Week is promoted by the National Dairy Council of Canada for the purpose of encouraging Canadians to become more familiar with cheese as a product, notably high in food value, and so low in price as to be within the reach of the most modest purse. We are so convinced that cheese can properly form a much greater place in the diet of the West," continued Mr. Gardiner, "that we are sending 2,000,000 pounds to the area suffering from drought, to be distributed with the double purpose of providing those presently in need and at the same time encouraging greater consumption of cheese in times when the people of the area can purchase."

Oberlin scientists find that doses of Vitamin A administered to motorists, tend to prevent automobile accidents at night. That discovery should help some until a way is found to provide the drivers with new sets of brains.

History Of Abandoned Town In Rockies That Was Prosperous Fifty Years Ago

Keeping Rainfall Records

The Advantages Of A Rain Gauge On Every Farm

Precipitation is the limiting factor in crop production in the drier areas of southern Alberta, southern Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba. It is expedient, therefore, that every farmer in these areas know as much as possible of the actual moisture which falls in the form of rain so that he may be able to farm most efficiently.

Rainfall records form a valuable index to crop possibilities. In general, in years where the seasonal rainfall (April, May, June and July) is above normal there has been a better than average crop, 1915, 1916 (rusted), 1923, 1927, 1928, 1932, 1935 (rusted). In the years which had higher than average seasonal rainfall, together with good fall moisture the previous year, there was also an exceptionally good crop (1915, 1928).

Total figures of precipitation, however, mean little in themselves; their value is determined by how the moisture comes (whether in light or heavy showers), by the temperature following a storm and by many other factors. A rain of less than one-quarter inch is of little value unless it occurs during a cool rainy spell. The value of a heavy thunderstorm or cloudburst is determined, partly, by the amount of moisture that runs off at that time.

Storms are usually very local. Rain gauges located at the Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, within a few hundred yards of each other indicate a wide variation in some showers. The fact that this variation in rainfall exists, coupled with the value which can be obtained from rainfall figures, justifies the use of a rain gauge on every farm, particularly in the drought area.

School Credits

May Be Given In Ontario For Music Study

School credits soon may be given to students for music study done outside schools with private teachers, according to Roy Fenwick, supervisor of music, Ontario Department of Education. Addressing the annual faculty luncheon of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Mr. Fenwick said the department at present was engaged in a study of the question of music credits in schools and if such study revealed feasibility of the plan, regulations would be issued to permit its being put into operation.

A rasp-like organ with which it can bore through the shells of oysters to devour them is a characteristic feature of the sea wheel.

Cross-eyed doctors are considered most capable and enjoy the greatest popularity in Central Turkestan.

There is a kind of melancholy fascination surrounding "ghost towns." Generally such places are remnants of mining enterprises which have closed down, leaving the inhabitants of the town no alternative but to move on to new fields. Such towns are common in the western United States, notably in Nevada, and there are many in British Columbia. But it is not generally known that there are one or two such spots in Alberta.

Such a place is "Silver City," near Castle Mountain station in Banff National Park. Half a century ago it was a thriving town. To-day, although it is on one of the main routes of travel, thousands of tourists pass the place every year without suspecting that Silver City ever existed.

The history of Silver City goes back to the early "eighties" when the Canadian Pacific Railway was building across the prairies. There was considerable activity in the Bow Valley above Calgary at that time, and late in 1882 or early in 1883 news leaked out that a rich silver strike had been made near Castle Mountain.

Men flocked to the spot in hundreds in the early Spring of 1883. Among these was Joseph Smith, then a workman on C.P.R., construction east of Calgary. The snow had hardly left the Bow Valley in the Spring of that year when he arrived at the scene of the "strike" with a prospector's outfit. Smith immediately set about building a hotel, and when sometime later the railroad builders reached the spot he was already doing a thriving business.

Silver City prospered for about three years. Then about 1886 the fact was finally realized that silver ore did not exist there in paying quantities. Almost overnight nearly every inhabitant moved away. Yet at the height of the boom the community is said to have had a population of 3,000. If this is accurate, Silver City must at that time have been one of the most important points between Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Until this month Silver City still had one inhabitant. He was Joseph Smith, whose faith in the silver mines of Castle Mountain had never waned. For over 50 years he had lived in his little cabin near Castle Mountain station, making a scant living by mining small quantities of silver ore in the summer and trapping in the winter.

This fall he was 94 years old, and advancing age made it impossible for him to carry on work any longer. He abandoned his cabin.

To-day all that remains there is the old cabin and two tumble-down warehouses. Even the name has been lost sight of and the point is simply referred to as Castle Mountain station. In the literature of the national parks it is not mentioned. — Edmonton Journal.

Market For Surplus

United States Takes All Turnips Canada Can Spare

The best export market for turnips grown in Canada is the United States. Of the total exports of turnips in fiscal year ended March 31, 1937, amounting to 2,623,787 bushels, 2,612,000 bushels went to the United States. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1936, the exports to the U.S. were 2,375,906 bushels.

Only negligible quantities of turnips are supplied to the United States by other countries so that the U.S. market may be regarded as a dependable one for the Canadian exportable surplus, depending upon production and business in general. The Canada-United States Trade Agreement which became effective in 1936 reduced the duty on turnips from 25 cents per 100 lbs. to 12½ cents per 100 lbs.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. STRANGE

The high tariff protection given to industry in the United States now, it appears, places the government in a most difficult position.

Agricultural exports, for one hundred years or more, formed the solid foundations of American prosperity.

Then industry began to expand, and industrial and labor leaders pressed for high tariff protection. This was granted by the government and resulted, naturally, in a decline in the imports of foreign goods into the United States. The inevitable consequences then were that the prices of the things American farmers had to buy increased, and the export sales of agricultural products declined; for these commodities could no longer be purchased as freely, or at the same good prices, by other countries.

American farmers now justly complain, but the government can remedy the situation only by lowering the high tariffs, against which policy industry and labor violently protest, or by planning to reduce the production of agricultural commodities, which latter plan would definitely mean, on the whole, a lowering of the farmers' income, and so of the farming families' standard of living.

Governments can, it seems, by means of high tariffs, expand home industry and make it more profitable, but only at the expense of agriculture and by adding to the burdens of farming families.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Further frosts in Argentina -- Rains interfere with Australian harvest -- Italian wheat acreage may be smaller than a year ago -- Holland buys American corn -- Estimates of Poland's 1937 wheat, oats, barley and rye production below 1936, Argentine shippers buy back wheat sales -- France buys Canadian wheat.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: Persistent decline in commodity and financial markets -- Sino-Japanese war interferes with Canadian wheat and flour trade -- 1937 Japanese wheat crop greatest ever produced -- Prohibition on Argentine exports removed -- Rains improve southern Argentine crops -- Poor European demand -- Expect record rice harvest in China, while millet and soy beans almost record.

M.B.C. Church Notes.

A series of evangelistic services will commence on Friday evening, December 3rd at 8 o'clock in the church and will continue each night throughout the week. On Sunday there will be two services, afternoon at 2:45 and evening at 7:45. Rev. B. H. Bailey, of Drumheller, will be the evangelist. All are invited to attend these services.

Commencing Saturday, December 4th at 10:15 a.m. there will be an all-day young people's convention in the church. Messages and essays dealing with vital and challenging topics will be given. Everyone, especially young people, are cordially invited to share with us this day of good things.

13-Year-old Boy Named Wheat King

Gordon Gibson, 13-year-old son of William Gibson, was declared the new wheat king with his entry of Reward hard red spring wheat at the Chicago international hay and grain show, and retained for Canada the coveted world crown. It was also the first time that the title had gone to British Columbia.

The new grain king shared his honors with a former winner. The Gibson entry was developed from seed purchased some years ago from Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, five times champion. Gibson's father took second wheat prize at Chicago in 1936 and 1935, third in 1932 and won the world championship for field peas in 1929, 1933 and 1934.

Although the boy was listed officially as the new wheat king, he had little to do with the actual growing. He put in holiday hours helping his father, but it was the latter who carefully nurtured the grain through the growing season, then shipped the entry under his son's name to put Canada's west coast province at the top of the wheat world.

A Fable.

A good story comes from the West:

Farmer No. 1 goes out shooting rabbits for his dogs; a deer appears, he gives it a charge and hits it in the head. The wounded deer streaks off into the bush, leaving a trail of blood. Like all good hunters No. 1 decides not to follow immediately, as that might give him many miles of tracking, but rather leave it for a while and probably find his deer near the spot. This is just what happened and No. 1 went to secure help.

In the meantime Farmer No. 2 follows the blood trail and finds the deer, fetches his car and takes it home, proclaiming himself a mighty hunter and treating his neighbors to venison.

Upon No. 1 asserting his right to the deer he was told that it had risen from the dead and had trotted merrily away, refusing to be shot at again. Of course, this fact proved very disappointing to No. 2. In fact, he was so chagrined that he conjured up another deer on the same spot and shot it. At least, this is his story. Some people would believe it, but needless to say, No. 1 failed to see the joke, as it cost him a winter's meat.

However, cheer up No. 1, better luck next time!

Protests Against Trailer License

Percy Jarvis, garage owner and Imperial Oil agent of North Red Deer, reluctantly parted with $12.50 for a two-wheel trailer license on Saturday

Called from his garage to direct a stranger he did so, and then the stranger noticed Mr. Jarvis's two-wheel trailer was without a license. He informed Mr. Jarvis as highway commissioner of the highway traffic board it was his duty to see that the vehicle was properly licensed and that the fee for such a license was $12.50

Mr. Jarvis promptly paid and received a receipt signed by J. F. Bently, commissioner of highway traffic board. Mr. Jarvis was unaware that such a license was required and thinks $12.50 and the mode of collecting it outrageous "Plain highway robbery," he protests.

Items of Interest

From the role of protectors of the last remnant of the aboriginal buffalo herds of the prairies, the Dominion government have developed into buffalo ranchers on a large and successful scale. Since the establishment of the buffalo preserves at Wainwright and Elk Island Parks, the increase in buffalo has been little short of phenomenal. So much so that the problem which faces the National Parks department each year is the orderly reduction of the herds at a ratio designed to prevent overcrowding of the fenced buffalo ranges. Within recent years more than 10,000 buffalo have been butchered and their carcasses and hides turned to good account. This year's quota which have been segregated for slaughter is set at 2,000 animals and the remaining herd at Wainwright alone will exceed 4,500 head.

R. W. Mayhew became Victoria's member elect to federal parliament. The Liberal candidate scored a victory in Monday's federal by-election over Bruce McKelvie, Conservative, and Prof. J. King Gordon, Montreal, nominee of the C. C. F. With only four polls unreported, the vote on Tuesday was: Mayhew, 9,204; McKelvie, 7,407, and Gordon, 6,407. This gave Mayhew a plurality of 1,797.

Doings of Our Neighbors

AT OLDS: An epidemic of stealing broke out in the Olds district when F. S. Grisdale, Art Noad, Wm Dawson and Hammer Bros. reported the theft of wheat from their granaries, and the Mountain View Co-operative Marketing Association had four hogs stolen from the stockyards. In each instance, a truckload was taken, estimated at 150 bushels to the load. A red truck was used for the theft at the Dawson farm, as red paint marks are still to be seen on the granary, where truck came in contact with the building.

AT CARSTAIRS: Fifteen dollars was taken from the cash register at the Atlas Lumber yard when a thief broke into the premises early Saturday morning. Entrance was gained through a small window and the till rifled. Apparently satisfied with the cash the thief did not take anything else.

Protect Your Hard-Earned Savings

THROUGHOUT Canada, life insurance policyholders and beneficiaries should realize the menace to their own and the national welfare that lies in extreme and unjust legislation.

These policyholders represent 50 per cent. of the electors—federal and provincial. Through the institution of life insurance, they have so pooled their resources that their collective interest can withstand attacks that would bring financial disaster to the individual.

Despite war, epidemic, panic and depression, life insurance has met every policy obligation promptly and in full.

Despite the financial disturbance of the past six years, it has distributed, and continues to distribute, to its policyholders and beneficiaries, over $500,000 every working day.

Seventy-five per cent. of this money has been, and continues to be, paid to living policyholders; the balance to beneficiaries.

Life insurance is the greatest co-operative business in Canada. No one doubts its strength and stability. No one questions the prudent and intelligent direction of its affairs.

It is the guardian of the hard-earned savings of 3,500,000 men and women in all walks of life.

Today there are forces in Canada that menace the welfare of these people. These forces would penalize their savings and impair their investments through legislation which cancels public and private debts—regardless of the debtor's ability to pay—and which tends to destroy the ownership of public and private property.

The interests of life insurance policyholders and beneficiaries—as of all other citizens whose savings are invested in one form or another in Canada—demand that promises to pay be observed, when the debtor is able to pay; that hard-earned savings which safeguard the homes and families of the Dominion be protected from unjust legislation.

R.C.M.P. Recruiting

Will Be At A Standstill For The Next Few Months

Approaching return of normal times is seen as a probable reason for a falling off in applications for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

In his annual report, the commissioner, Sir James MacBrien, says applicants during the year ended March 31, 1937, numbered 1,817, a decrease of approximately 47 per cent. from the previous 12-month period. Only 67 of the number who applied were taken on the force on account of a reduction in establishment.

"To all intents and purposes recruiting was at a standstill," the report states, "and of the 67 men engaged 16 were for duty with the marine section, 45 as special constables and two returned to the force after leaving. In addition three special constables were engaged as regular members of the force."

"The wastage during the year, retirements and deaths, was 211 and taking the 67 engagements into account the final result was a net decrease of 144."

"There are many desirable young men available and qualified for engagements but it is not likely that any further recruiting will be necessary for several months."

The total strength of the force is 2,573, of which 92 are officers, 2,130 non-commissioned officers and constables, 131 special constables and 220 members of the marine section which looks after coastal patrol work.

The main training centre at Regina was kept busy but it was not possible to establish the proposed national training centre there. This will be available to all police forces in Canada. The project has been considered for some time but lack of building accommodation and equipment prevented its execution although some progress was made.

Woman Lives In Tree

Old French Villager Has Home Inside The Trunk

The old woman who lived in a shoe might be a fairy tale but near Rodez, France, there has been found a woman who lives in a tree. Her home is built inside the trunk. Measuring almost 54 feet in circumference at its base, the tree has been rotted at its centre. The space inside has permitted the old villager to install bed, stove and chairs, with her kitchen utensils nailed to the inside of the trunk. The tree is a European species called tilleul and its dried leaves and flowers, with a lemon flavor, are an ancient medicinal herb when dissolved into "lilleul tea." The old woman has left the upper stories of her home to the birds.

Earth Tremors

Old Mother Earth Having A Rare Case Of Fidgets

Old mother earth has been having a rare case of fidgets, but take a seismologist's word for it—the jiggles may be better than a long spell of quiet.

Back in 1929, recalls Father Joseph J. Lynch of Fordham University, there wasn't a rumble from the earth's interior for six months. Then came the crash that swept a tidal wave over Newfoundland's Burin peninsula, drowning a score and ripping 13 cables from the ocean floor.

As for this year's series of grunts and grumbles, Father Lynch says: "You needn't be alarmed. We're not shaking to pieces. At least, things are a good deal quieter now."

They began early in July, when the Fordham seismographs—sunk 30 feet in a vault on the campus—began to trace a series of zig-zags. With mounting frequency the nervous retchings have gone on for more than three months, but are now beginning to slack off.

"It has been the most unusual series of quakes since 1930," says Father Lynch. "We don't know what has been happening or what it may portend."

The tremors jumped around the globe from Verona, N.J., to Japan, bobbed up in Central America, the Philippines and Mexico.

The following notice appeared outside a small church in Virginia:

"The Rev. — will preach here next Sunday morning and evening, after which the church will be closed for necessary repairs."

Live minnows can be kept by placing them in running water of the same temperature as that from which they were obtained and feeding them on bread crumbs and soft scraps.

Another Step Forward

New Glass Wool Keeps Plants From Being Winter Killed

A new step in man's control of weather, this time for the farmer, by use of glass "wool" to keep plants alive in winter, was announced at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

The "wool" made of fibres of glass finer than human hair, is laid on the ground as a new form of "mulch", the blanket which farmers thousands of years ago started with dried grass, and which has since been improved with many substances. The glass, snow-white, soft as cotton fluff, was made by the Corning Glass Works and its weather-making properties discovered by R. C. Allen, of the Cornell department of floriculture and ornamental horticulture.

"It has been possible," Mr. Allen said, "to carry over the winter, by use of this material, many species of plants which could not otherwise be wintered in this region."

The glass "wool" comes in bales, and unrolls over the ground like a carpet. It is so light that a child of four could hold over its head a bale the size of a hoghead.

Had Queer Result

Football Caused Short Circuit In Hydro Service Wire

When two boys kicked a football against Hydro service wires in London, Ontario, they welded a stopper into a bath-tub and caused other damages amounting to approximately $80, according to a report received at the Hydro office. The report indicates that the ball struck one service wire, causing it to meet the second wire. A short circuit resulted. The heavy current set in motion travelled into a house occupied by G. Aikens. It evidently grounded through the plumbing system.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

HOT OVEN REQUIRED
FOR MAKING BISCUITS

One of the most common causes of failure in making biscuits is the oven temperature. Biscuits require a hot oven. A slow oven dries out the biscuits and they do not rise as well. A hot oven makes the biscuits rise quickly and they have a nice soft crust.

Biscuits should be made from a very moist dough. Biscuits which are patted out instead of being rolled are always lighter. Those that are made very moist and dropped from a spoon in place of being rolled out, are even lighter. Handle the dough as little as possible and if the rolling pin is used, press very lightly. Do not turn the dough over while rolling out the biscuits, as this makes tougher ones. The biscuits which are made from the second rolling are never as light as the first rolling. This proves that the more biscuits are handled, the tougher they will be. In mixing the dry ingredients, they should be sifted three times. This mixes the ingredients thoroughly and removes all lumps and specks.

Milk or water can be added as the liquid. Butter or shortening are most satisfactory as the fat. A mixture of the two is good. If cream can be used, the amount of fat can be reduced. The farm woman who has her own cream crock has a splendid chance to make light, rich biscuits.

Soda and sour milk are considered by many to make better biscuits than sweet milk and baking-powder. For soda the rule is—use one half teaspoon soda for each cup of sour milk. If too much soda is used, the biscuits are yellow in color and have a disagreeable taste. For baking powder, use two teaspoons of baking powder for each cup of flour.

The basic recipe for biscuits can be used in making some delightful desserts.

APPLE COBBLER

Wash, peel and slice enough apples to fill a baking dish three-fourths full. Make a rich baking powder biscuit dough and have it soft enough to stir, rather than roll out. Spread over the top of the apples which have been sweetened to taste. Make some cuts in the crust to allow the steam to escape. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes.

WAKE UP LIKE A CAVE MAN

Feel Full of Life—No More
Tired, Dull, Heavy Mornings

Keep your liver healthy and you'll feel great every morning. When you wake up feeling "rotten" your liver is out of order. Your liver clears the blood of poisons, separates the nourishing part of your food from the waste. Supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands—gives out bile, the body's laxative, helps stomach, kidneys and intestines to work properly. A mere bowel movement isn't enough. "Fruit-a-tives" made from fruits and herbs, will strengthen and build up your liver like nothing else will. You'll be amazed how well you are every morning. Try Fruit-a-tives. All druggists.

Arms Exports

Shipments Reported To Be Small
And Mostly To Empire Countries

Canada's exports of arms and ammunition are comparatively small, it was shown in the first reports compiled under the new legislation providing for the licensing of such exports.

In the three months the licensing provisions have been operating, a total of $178,181 worth of goods have been checked out by the department of national revenue but of this amount $104,488 was made up of aircraft and parts of aircraft of a non-military type.

Of course aircraft of any kind may be used for military purposes but there were no shipments under the department's classification of equipment "adapted or intended for military or naval reconnaissance or for aerial combat by the use of machine guns or artillery or for carrying and dropping bombs."

The licensing requirements became effective July 31 and the three-month period includes the months of August, September and October. In this period Argentina bought goods to the value of $84,436, the United Kingdom, $68,001; United States, $17,546 and smaller shipments, totalling $6,197 were made to Australia, Newfoundland, Brazil and Mexico.

Amendments to the Customs Act made at the last session of parliament prohibited export of arms or munitions of war except under license. Shipments to Spain have been banned.

Leading items were: Aircraft (non-military) $89,376, of which $80,956 went to Argentina and $8,420 to the United States.

Ammunition, $73,194, all projectiles and small arms ammunition and all to empire destinations, $67,921 to the United Kingdom, $4,411 to Australia and $867 to Newfoundland.

Aircraft propellers, fuselages, tail units, undercarriage units and wheels, $12,837, of which $6,432 went to the United States, $5,480 to Argentina, $550 to Brazil and $375 to Mexico.

Aircraft engines, $2,275, all to the United States.

Far Behind The Times

Religious Sect In Ontario Town
Follows Old Custom

According to the Guelph Mercury there is in the county of Waterloo a religious sect whose members still cling to the quaint old beliefs that a man's word is as good as his contract, that one should not borrow more than he intends to repay, and that the simple things of life are the best.

Queer, these people are so far behind the times. They know not the joy of instalment purchases, double dealing, onerous debt. Their beliefs set them entirely apart.

Yet they live in peace and contentment, in fellowship and friendship with their neighbors, unworried by tomorrow's reckoning. And the hurrying, blasé world might find the utopia it seeks in the life of these fortunate, carefree farmers.

Mrs. Wyncoop manoeuvred her mink-mantled form into the path of the social leader.

"How do you do, Mrs. Phelps?" cooed Mrs. Wyncoop. "I'm Mrs. Wyncoop. We met at the Juvenile Delinquents Conference in Dubuque last year."

From her Olympian height Mrs. Phelps regarded Mrs. Wyncoop very much as if the latter lady were a juvenile delinquent herself.

"But of course," said Mrs. Phelps. "May I present my husband, Mr. Wyncoop?" petitioned Mrs. Wyncoop.

Mr. Wyncoop put out a hand like five frankfurters attached to a chop. "Glad to know you," he boomed. "Have a weenie?"

Mrs. Phelps took the hand but declined the offer.

"And may I also present my son, Master Mervin?" said Mrs. Wyncoop.

"How do you do?" said Mrs. Phelps.

Master Mervin did not tell her how he did, for his mouth was full of sausage, and a disquieting sensation was stirring beneath his buttons. He favored Mrs. Phelps with a surly, frog-eyed look.

"Aren't you going to say 'how do you do' to Mrs. Phelps, dear?" said Mrs. Wyncoop, sweetly, as, unseen by Mrs. Phelps, she gave her offspring a sharp prod in the spot where he bulged most. That it is unwise to prod a bulging boy was instantly and graphically demonstrated.

After Master Mervin had been borne away, green and limp, but less bulgy, the judges went into conference. The Congressman, his professional eye caught by the lavish expenditure of money on the weenie show, and not unmindful of the congressional precept that it is as easy to be a friend of a rich man as an enemy, declared himself in favor of awarding the prize to the Wyncoop entry. The Mayor, whose feet were tired, saw no reason, he stated, for prolonged debate, and expressed his willingness to agree with his honorable colleague, the gentleman from Council Bluffs. But Clara-Martha Phelps cleared her long throat and voiced a polite but emphatic dissent.

"Gentlemen," said Mrs. Phelps, "my artistic conscience will not permit me to vote for this exhibit."

"Will the lady from Des Moines kindly state her objections?" said the Congressman in his best rostrum manner.

"It's that horse," said Mrs. Phelps. "That dreadful horse! It strikes a dissonance."

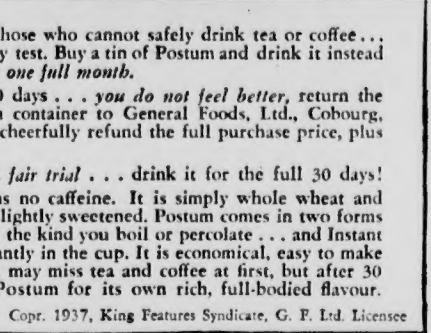

She saw that the Congressman looked puzzled, and went on—

"A false note. That the machine is interesting and educational, I do not deny, but I do question the good taste of that horse. I cannot, gentlemen, see eye to eye with you."

The Congressman went into conference with himself.

What he thought was, "That stuck-up bean-pole couldn't see eye to eye with anything but a stilt-walker. But she's got a lot of influence among the women voters. I can't afford to have that ostrich against me when I campaign for senator next year. Old Wyncoop will be as sore as a stubbed toe if I don't give him the prize, but I'll square him by giving that blubber-head brat of his an appointment to West Point. Besides Wyncoop has a senatorial bee himself, and if I hand him a lot of free publicity, consider me crazy."

Aloud he said:

"I bow to the taste of the lady from Des Moines."

The Mayor, who wanted to get home and take his shoes off, said that he saw Mrs. Phelps's point, but observed that they must give the prize to somebody.

"I thought that exhibit of the fauna of Iowa not without cultural value," said Mrs. Phelps.

"Second the motion," said the Congressman.

"Motion carried," said the Mayor.

Ernest Bingley was sitting in his corner, among his array of weasels and chickadees, as silent and spiritless as if he were one of them. To be pushed into a murky corner had irked, though hardly surprised him. He had noted, with impotent resentment, that the Wyncoops had made his horse the piece de resistance of their offering. Technically, he conceded, it was not his horse, but he felt that he had a moral claim on it. He was sitting there, birds to the right of him, birds to the left of him, animals behind him, speculating on man's inhumanity to man, when the trio of arbiters swam into his ken. The Mayor, as spokesman, in a speech cut short because of his aching arches, presented Ernest with a blue ribbon and a check. Ernest shyly studied his own shoestrings during this ceremony. He had prepared and rehearsed a gracious speech in the wildly improbable event that he should win, but before he could regain control of his faculties and make it, the judges had departed.

He was still standing there, check in one hand, blue ribbon in the other, in a happy daze, when the Wyncoops, including a wan and hollow Mervin, passed his booth. The sultan of sausagedom and his mate looked as pleased as a pair of picnickers who have found ants in their pie. Ernest waited for congratulatory words but received only wintry stares. He felt, for he was like that, that he had wronged them in winning and that he should apologize for his victory. But before he could utter any contrite words, the cavalcade of bitter Wyncoops had swept by, leaving the temperature lowered by thirty degrees.

That night, while the final fireworks display was emblazoning the lineaments of Uncle Sam on the Iowa sky in flares of red, white and blue, Ernest stowed his menagerie aboard the ramshackle hired truck, and sent it stuttering through the night toward Bear Falls. As his chariot wheezed and rattled along the highway he sang to the stars a little song which welled from a full and happy heart. Again and again he sang it. The tune was never twice the same but the words did not vary. They went,

"What ho for Merrie England,
What ho, what ho, what ho!
What ho for Merrie England,
What HO!"

During a lull in the boot business next afternoon, Mr. Slocum entered the studio to extend his felicitations to the triumphant taxidermist.

"Atta boy, Ernie," said Mr. Slocum. "I'm tickled pink you won."

"Thanks a million, Mr. Slocum," said Ernest.

"I can't think when I've been so tickled," said Mr. Slocum.

Ernest Bingley was engaged in taking shirts from the chest of drawers and examining them for holes and other defects.

"Just saw Armina Wyncoop coming out of Munn's drug store," said Mr. Slocum. "She had the young weenie with her and he had an ice cream cone in each hand and the remains of a third on his puss. I chirped, 'Howdy, Armina. How did you enjoy the fair?' Well, sir, she handed me a look that would have skinned a rattlesnake, and slammed the door of her sedan right in my face. She was wearing a pair of short vamp, two tone, gray suede pumps that must have cost fifteen dollars in Chicago. I hope," added Mr. Slocum, "they were pinching the merry hell out of her."

"I'm afraid the Wyncoops are sore at me," said Ernest, discarding a frayed blue shirt.

"Oh, no, not a bit," said Mr. Slocum. "But, say, Ernie, if I was you I wouldn't stroll past the sausage mill on a dark night or you might find yourself in links."

"It was a fair competition," Ernest said.

"Sure it was," said Mr. Slocum. "That's what got Ote Wyncoop's nanny. He ain't used to fair competition."

He became aware of the fact that Ernest was carefully folding the unblemish shirts and packing them into a suitcase which looked like leather if you didn't look too hard.

"Taking out your washing, Ernie?" inquired Mr. Slocum.

"No," replied Ernest. "I'm going away."

"Business?"

"No."

"Well, I guess you got a little" vacation coming to you," said Mr. Slocum. "Only if I was in your shoes, I'd stick around, and cash in on the ad you got winning that prize."

"No doubt you're right, Mr. Slocum," Ernest said. "But just the same, I'm going away."

"Where to?"

"England."

"Well, Ill be blistered and buttered," ejaculated Mr. Slocum. "That'll run into money, Ernie."

"I've got some."

"How much?"

"Nearly three hundred dollars, counting the prize I won," answered Ernest.

"Looks like you'll have to swim one way," remarked Mr. Slocum.

Ernest laughed.

"No, I can manage all right. Just about. I got it figured out to the penny," he said. "Of course, I'll have to hitch-hike part of the way, and not eat much."

"You must want to go to England powerful bad," Mr. Slocum said.

"I do."

Ernest took from the chest of drawers a small picture and was about to wrap it in one of his possible shirts, when Mr. Slocum asked,

"Who's the gal?"

"Lucy Bingley," Ernest told him.

"Relation of yours?"

"Sort of."

"Let me have a look at her."

Ernest handed him a small miniature painted on ivory. It showed a fresh-cheeked girl, with round, innocent eyes.

"Mighty pretty," commented Mr. Slocum. "Where does she live?"

"Heaven, I guess," said Ernest.

"She's been an angel for more than a hundred years."

"No fooling?" exclaimed Mr. Slocum.

Little Helps For This Week

Behold I am with thee and will keep thee in all places whithersoever thou goest. Genesis 38:15.

Why should you care and sadness borrow,
Why sit in nameless fear and sorrow,
God will mark out thy path to-morrow
In His best way.

The best place is wherever He puts us, and any other would be undesirable because it would be our choice and not God's. Do not think about distant events because the uneasiness about the future is unwholesome for you. We must leave to God all that depends on Him and think only of being faithful in all that depends on ourselves. When God takes away what He has given you, He knows well how to replace it either through other means or by Himself.

Just An Experiment

Idea Of Preacher Gave Carbonic Acid Drinks To World

Many billion bottles of pop and in-calculable amounts of ice cream soda are now sold the year around because a Nonconformist preacher with a delight in chemical experiment found a crude means of introducing carbonic acid gas into still water more than a century ago. The great Dr. Joseph Priestly, whose mind, effervescing with the liberal ideology of the later eighteenth century, also persuaded well water to bubble like champagne and thus became, quite absent-mindedly, the great-grand-father of the soda fountain, itself about a century old.—New York Herald-Tribune. 2229

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

Men have the common idea that they are walking toward the precipice of death and that they can calculate they are a certain distance from it this year, and so much nearer the next year, and nearer still the year following, until they reach the very edge of it. But experience teaches us that we do not walk toward the precipice, but along the edge of it, and another step may place us where recovery is beyond our reach and where all repentance is impossible, because no place is found for it, though it be sought with tears.
